Call for Posters and Guidelines

Call for Posters

The International Health Workforce Collaborative conference offers the opportunity to share and discuss your current workforce-related research activities. Posters are designed to inform and assist in communicating new information and inform workforce policy. Presentations will be on display during the poster reception, and five (one from each country) will be selected for a presentation featuring the best posters session.

The deadline to submit an abstract is June 6, 2016

To apply, please submit a 500 word poster(s) abstract to the Royal College centralized intake system here. You may have to create an initial account if you have never accessed the Royal College system. Instructions for creating an account are provided upon accessing the link. If you have any technical issues with the submission, please contact onlinesupport@royalcollege.ca for assistance.

The abstract should:

1. State the objectives, population studied, methods and findings, or emerging findings, policy implications and any conclusions that can be drawn from your work.
2. Provide the following information: Author(s) name, Organization, Title, Contact Details (email address is essential).

All abstract submissions will be reviewed by a subcommittee of the global planning committee. You will be notified whether the poster has been accepted. Once accepted, you are asked to prepare posters in accordance with the guidelines detailed below.

One poster from each country will be selected by the Global Planning Subcommittee for presentation at a concurrent session. If you have any questions, please contact Clese Erikson, IHWC 2016 Chair, cerikson@gwu.edu, (202) 994-4122.

Guidelines for Posters

If selected, posters must fit on a 4' high X 6' wide poster board and include: objectives, study design, setting (e.g. regional, national or local), main outcome measures, results, and policy implications.

All final posters are to be submitted in PDF for posting on the IHWC website. Contact information should be somewhere in the body of the poster. Posters with dense text are discouraged since they tend to be difficult to read.

Poster presenters are responsible for getting their posters to the event and setting them up on the day of the poster session (push pins will be provided).
